

*A gift
of hope*

Chris O'Brien
Lifehouse

Discovery, research and uncompromising care

Thank you

Associate Professor Judith Lacey,
Head of Supportive Care and Integrative Oncology caring for a patient

Every day I have the privilege of speaking with patients and their families, and I am often struck by their stories of resilience, hope and strength.

Hearing these stories, I feel incredibly grateful to our donor community, whose generosity enables the research and support services that give our patients this hope - hope for more effective treatments, better outcomes and quality of life.

I am deeply grateful to know you are considering Chris O'Brien Lifehouse in your Will. By doing so, you will leave a legacy of a future unaffected by cancer.

Crafting my own Will was an incredibly personal decision. I wanted to not only support my loved ones but also ensure that things I value like supporting people with cancer in the years to come were included.

I hope this booklet is helpful as you make your decision, and answers some questions on how your gift could help others.

For a confidential discussion, please don't hesitate to contact us on 02 8514 0006 or development.office@lh.org.au.

Thank you,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Eileen'.

Eileen Hannagan
CEO, Chris O'Brien Lifehouse

A gift of hope for life unaffected by cancer

Chris O'Brien Lifehouse was once just an idea.

When my husband Chris O'Brien was diagnosed with brain cancer, he instinctively used his diagnosis to advocate fiercely for his vision of a comprehensive cancer centre that brought together every aspect of cancer care under one roof.

Chris passed away on June 4, 2009. In November 2013, Chris O'Brien Lifehouse opened as the state's first comprehensive, not-for-profit cancer hospital, treating both public and private patients.

Today, we treat all cancers and are the leading referral centre for rare and complex cancers across Australia. We offer the latest in cancer treatment and holistic care through traditional treatments and complementary therapies.

Our clinicians are world-leaders in cancer research, determined to find better ways to treat patients and deliver uncompromising, patient-centred care.

As a not-for-profit hospital, our model of care relies on the generosity of our donors, who impact many lives with their generosity and vision.

A gift in Will to Chris O'Brien Lifehouse is a lasting legacy in transforming cancer treatment and care.

Thank you for your interest in making a difference in the lives of people with cancer.

A handwritten signature in black ink, which appears to read "Gail O'Brien".

Gail O'Brien AO
Patient Advocate and Board Member

“By coming together, our lives can touch and affect many individuals whom we may never meet.”

- Professor Chris O'Brien AO

Julian shaving his oncologist, Professor Michael Boyer AO's head to raise funds for cancer.

What value do you put on Your life?

Julian was twenty-four years old when he discovered a lump on his right shoulder.

"I was sent for a scan... I remember opening the envelope to read the scan notes before I went in," says Julian. "The doctor had written, 'Lymphoma?'"

Julian was diagnosed with stage four Hodgkin's Lymphoma. During the process of meeting doctors and oncologists, he crossed paths with Professor Michael Boyer AO, Chief Clinical Officer at Chris O'Brien Lifecare.

"We had an instant connection. That's when I knew I was in the right place for my treatment."

"Chris O'Brien Lifecare is an integrated building, a one-stop-shop, where people can have all their clinical treatments, surgical procedures, whatever they need, all in one area. It's just amazing.

"With a young family, life is expensive, but I wanted to give something greater back. That's why I saw my solicitor and changed my Will to leave a donation to Chris O'Brien Lifecare.

"I want to thank them for what they've given me; a life of good health after my illness."

"It feels good to give back."

- Julian Hofer

Julian with his family

Discovery, research and Uncompromising Care

When I started over 20 years ago as an oncologist, there was only one drug for metastatic colorectal cancer. This was all we had. Now we have more than half a dozen. Much of this progress is driven by continued investment in research.

Research leads to breakthrough treatments and more effective approaches to treating cancer. At Chris O'Brien Lifehouse, our researchers are often the same clinicians who treat our patients. This approach means the gap between the lab and the clinic is eliminated, and our patients benefit earlier from access to the most cutting-edge treatments and therapies.

Funding for research is incredibly competitive and many researchers spend more time applying for research funding than doing the actual research. As a not-for-profit hospital, many of our innovative research projects are made possible through donor support.

The generosity and vision of our donors enables our scientists and clinicians to push boundaries and explore new frontiers where the greatest discoveries are made.

By supporting Chris O'Brien Lifehouse, you are supporting more discoveries and breakthroughs and a greater likelihood that patient outcomes and lives will be improved both now and into the future.

I am deeply grateful to you for supporting a future where life is unaffected by cancer.

Professor Lisa Horvath
Director of Research

Professor Lisa Horvath

Jennie's gift

Jennie Connolly was a highly skilled lace-maker and much-loved mentor in Chris O'Brien Lifehouse's art therapy program, where she would often be found teaching the novice knitter the perfect garter stitch.

Jennie was also a patient at Chris O'Brien Lifehouse, being treated for ovarian cancer. Sadly, Jennie passed away in 2018.

In the months before her passing, Jennie felt a deep desire to do something meaningful for the thousands of other women who are diagnosed with ovarian cancer each year. Jennie left a significant gift in her Will to Chris O'Brien Lifehouse, to be dedicated to gynaecological cancer research.

Jennie's legacy now lives on at Chris O'Brien Lifehouse in the hearts and minds of those who loved and cared for her, and in the thousands of women who will never know her, but who will benefit from the advancements in research made possible by her gift.

Dr Rhonda Farrell
Deputy Director of Gynae-oncology

Jennie's amazing gift supports innovative research into a new chemotherapy technique for treating ovarian cancer. This research is being driven by the Deputy Director of Gynae-Oncology, Dr Rhonda Farrell.

Jennie's legacy...

This new technique involves delivering heated chemotherapy directly into a patient's abdomen after surgery, to 'clean up' any remaining microscopic cancer cells.

"There is evidence that cancer cells are targeted more effectively when this technique is used," says Dr Farrell. "But we don't know if it's the heat, the direct contact with the drug, or the combination of both that's effective."

Dr Farrell's research aims to find an answer to this vital question. "We are working to improve the survival rate and wellbeing of these women and delay the return of their cancer."

"I'm honoured by Jennie's generosity," says Dr Farrell. "She wanted to help other women who are going through what she went through, and that is exactly what her gift is achieving."

...gives Ivana hope

"I was a busy individual - a full-time working parent with a daughter about to start her HSC studies. I had none of the risk factors. Ovarian cancer is a wicked disease; there are no typical symptoms.

As a widowed single parent, my health is very important. I had to make the best decision for my daughter.

I received treatment under the care of Dr Farrell and her team, and I'm so grateful – grateful to have been able to receive this new treatment, and for the excellent care Dr Farrell gave to me. It's so crucial to find a specialist you truly trust, and I trust Dr Farrell and her team. I cannot thank them enough for the treatment that saved my life."

Ivana Rapajic-Moran
Patient at Chris O'Brien Lifehouse

Ivana and her daughter, Tara in Noosa after treatment at Chris O'Brien Lifehouse

"Catriona has kept me alive."

Tom McNamara always brings a bunch of flowers for his doctor, Associate Professor Catriona McNeil, whenever he returns to Chris O'Brien Lifehouse.

Tom was living with a terminal melanoma diagnosis and was told he had just three months to live when he joined dozens of Australian patients taking part in a clinical trial of the new immunotherapy drug pembrolizumab, or Keytruda.

"Catriona has kept me alive. When I was diagnosed with metastatic melanoma, Catriona organised my acceptance on the clinical trial. She gave me confidence that I could live for another two years."

Since joining the trial, Tom has celebrated his 76th birthday - after being told he would never reach his 75th. The clinical trials program at Chris O'Brien Lifehouse is part of our commitment to ensuring many more people like Tom have early access to the world's newest medications, treatments, therapies and surgeries.

As the first purpose-built cancer-only clinical trials facility in NSW, at any one time there are more than 100 clinical trials being undertaken by or in collaboration with our researchers and clinicians.

As for Tom, he makes the most of each day by gardening and visiting his friends. He has also chosen to leave Chris O'Brien Lifehouse a gift in his Will, for a simple reason: "Lifehouse has helped me. I hope my gift to Lifehouse might help others."

"In the last decade, we've seen massive breakthroughs in treatments for melanoma. The scope and potential for drugs like pembrolizumab is truly amazing and will probably revolutionise cancer care."

- A/Prof Catriona McNeil
Medical Oncologist

Options

for leaving a gift in your Will

Chris O'Brien Lifehouse holds Deductible Gift Recipient (DGR) Status Item 1 and is fully tax exempt (ABN 70 388 962 804).

Residuary

After taking care of your loved ones, you can leave all or a percentage of the remainder of your estate to Chris O'Brien Lifehouse.

Percentage

Leave a fixed percentage of your estate to Chris O'Brien Lifehouse. A percentage means that your gift will remain inflation-proof.

Assets

You can gift specific items from your Will to Chris O'Brien Lifehouse, such as property, shares or life insurance funds.

Many people are happy for us to use their gift in the area of most need. However, if there's a particular area of our work that speaks more deeply to you, please let us know. We'll work together to ensure your gift has the greatest impact for future generations.

Capital Gains Tax on estate assets & transfer of shares 'in specie'

Chris O'Brien Lifehouse is a registered charity with the Australian Charities and Not for profit Commission (ACNC). We are fully tax exempt. A transfer of real estate or shares direct to Chris O'Brien Lifehouse from your estate can reduce the tax paid by your estate, which can significantly benefit Lifehouse and your other beneficiaries.

If you have a specific area of our work you'd like to support with your gift in Will, please contact us directly to discuss wording.

Suggested wording

"I give, devise and bequeath to Lifehouse Australia Trust ABN 70 388 962 804 of registered office Level 5, 119-143 Missenden Road, Camperdown, New South Wales 2050

- the rest and residue of my estate remaining, or
- [...] percent of my estate, or
- [...] percent of the residue, or
- a gift of [specify sufficient details of the gift being bequeathed such as all my shares in XX company or my principal place of residence] free of all duties for the general purposes of and declare that the receipt of the Treasurer or other authorised officer shall be sufficient discharge for my executor."

Marayart receiving chemotherapy in a private treatment booth.

Our Promise to you

To treat you as a member of our Lifehouse community.

To allocate 100% of your gift to your intended purpose.

To always communicate openly and honestly.

To keep you updated and informed of the impact your gift will have.

To acknowledge and recognise your generous donation.

To respect your right to privacy.

To be held accountable to our vision, values and mission.

To provide prompt responses to any questions you may have.

We understand this is a big decision for you and your family.

We'd love to hear from you and we're here to answer any questions you may have.

We encourage you to get in touch with us for a confidential discussion with a member of our team.

T (02) 8514 0006

E development.office@lh.org.au

119-143 Missenden Road
Camperdown NSW 2050

Celeste is now recovering from treatment for sarcoma. Pictured here with her partner, George